

Posy Lighting Collection Dimore Catalogue

Design by: Sara Moroni

A personal bouquet of light: unique and poetic.

This is the design intent of Sara Moroni, lighting and interior designer, for the Posy collection by Masiero, a tribute to the floral kingdom.

With a strong visual impact, but characterized by elegant minimalism, Posy features a structure of brass bar elements with an elegant brushed galvanic finish that support one or more spherical opal glass diffusers.

Inspired by the shapes of the natural world, the collection reproduces the formal and structural transposition of gems that develop, in an irregular way, around a stem. The abstraction of natural gems has transformed them into poetic bubbles of opal glass, of different diameters, and the stem into an elegant organic brass structure that binds and supports everything. The structure is a cross between longer bars in smooth brass and shorter bars with micro striped ribbed decoration.

The collection comes in a wide range of types, shapes and sizes: single or multiple suspensions or in clusters as in inflorescences. The combination of blown glass and brass was designed to make two noble materials interact through the light, almost antithetical to each other: light, fragile, semi-transparent the first and material, ductile, brilliant the second.

The originality of Posy also derives from having broken down the compositional canons of symmetry and correspondence of the elements by design; asymmetry and decomposition have been deliberately sought, as if to recall the concept of movement, dynamism and lightness.

A deliberately transversal style so as to allow Posy to illuminate from the bar to the hotel, from the office to the living room at home, from modern to more classic spaces.
