Design Scatter d

The name of NA-AR elegant collection of pendant lights, wall lights and table lamps, designed by Scatter d studio, evokes the colour of fire in Persian and, through synesthesia, a warm, soft light, perfect for both a dinner with friends and a quiet moment spent reading a book.

The designers duo' creative instinct was sparked by the striped surface of brass, a technique rooted in industrial manufacturing that retains its distinctive beauty over time.

From the potential of the material and experimentation with Masiero's expert craftsmanship techniques, a collection of cylindrical lamps with a ribbed brass structure has emerged, characterised by carefully studied, clean-cut lines from which the light radiates.

The minimalist suspended cylinders, available in three lengths and with three different types of bevelled edges at the ends, can be arranged into customised clusters, in which the light emerging from the lower end of each suspension is reflected onto the neighbouring ones, creating different reflections depending on the viewing angle.

Formal rigour blends with compositional potential: minimalist tubes, traversed by a graphic rhythm of vertical lines reminiscent of cannetè, can give rise to a diverse range of atmospheres.

The three-dimensional textures and chiaroscuro effects that characterise the metallic surface are capable of enhancing a wide variety of settings, from domestic spaces to large-scale environments where a striking lighting installation is required.

The table lamp features a cut-out design that mimics a recessed niche, allowing the light to emerge in a diffused manner.

Two elegant finishes are available: champagne and terra di Marte, both of which have been hand-brushed to enhance the richness of the brass material with a bicolor effect. The LED light source directs the light downwards in the pendant version, whilst in the wall-mounted version the light is also directed upwards.
